lighlights & Deviations: One of our highlights is our "e-communique newsletter" it is a tool to encourage and promote resources and nformation to clients and providers related to best practices in prenatal care and quality assurance.

Corrective Actions for Services were offered in utilizing temporary facilities. Care Pregnancy Clinic received assistance through the temporary Deviations: use of mobile units from Illinois, Minnesota, and Ohio. An RV was donated to Care Pregnancy Clinic by Minnesota. CTLM also activated its media and marketing campaign to promote service availability in impacted areas. Also served as a disaster relief site giving baby essentials as needed.

Ongoing Obstacles: The historic flooding of August 2016 directly impacted the delivery of services. CTLM administrative and clinics were both flooded resulting in displacement of office operations including the loss of equipment, supplies, resources and of course access to the facility. This also included limited or new access to internet and cellphone use. Other areas such as Livingston Parish was also directly impacted affecting the previously projected service delivery to those areas.

PREGNANCY & THE HOLIDAYS

https://www.babymed.com/labor-delivery/10-tipspregnant-women-due-during-holiday

Your due date is smack-dab in the middle of the holiday season. Plus or minus a week or two, you could actually go into labor on Christmas, so how do you plan for the holiday and your birth at the same time?

- Pack your hospital bag early. Don't leave this task until the last minute. With all the boxes, gifts, wrapping paper strewn all over the place, make sure you collect everything you need at least two weeks in advance of your due date and keep the bag in a place where anyone can find it.
- Don't travel too far from home. Holiday travel is part of family celebration, but you should not be traveling more than a few miles from home close to your due date.
  Not only are long travel times painful and potentially dangerous (increased risk of blood clots in the legs); they take you away from your doctor and the hospital where you'll be delivering.
- Skip family parties and get-togethers during the final days before your due date.
   Crowded parties are the last place you want to be days before your due date. Many times, holiday parties involve mingling leaving few places to rest. You need to propup your feet and rest at least 15 minutes every hour.
- Rest as much as possible; then rest some more. Rest is essential to your health, strength and immune system. The holidays naturally drain energy from our bodies, let alone when your pregnancy due date is looming near.
- Don't feel obligated to attend every party. Say no to parties if you are feeling under the weather or tired. The more stressed you are the less prepared you'll be to fight off infections and illness. You need strong body to recover after birth.
- Remember, having a due date during the holiday season may feel stressful, but just remember that you'll be celebrating a birthday every year when sales are rampant and emotions filled with joy and love.

Holiday Tips for Dads

http://www.fathers.com/s7-hot-topics/c58-holidaysseasonal/holiday-tips-for-dads-and-kids/

Year-end holidays can make wonderful experiences and memories for dads and kids. They can also be stressful, and whip by incredibly fast. Here are a few tips to keep in mind for making the most of your holiday.

- Presence always trumps presents. More than any transient toy or other physical object, your kids crave your time and attention, so let them bask in your presence.
- Give them a "Time Machine." Instead of the latest electronic gadget, give your child time (and be sure to keep the commitments you make).
- Redefine interactive. Nowadays, interactive seems to mean a toy or machine that "interacts" with us people. Remember that what really builds families is interaction between people and other people!
- Remember ritual. Repetition of meaningful rituals is an important part of building holiday traditions and instilling positive holiday memories for a lifetime. Rituals can include attending religious worship services, having special friends and family for a traditional meal, reading a favorite story every year, making a special holiday morning breakfast, or anything else that draws you closer to each other. Take pictures to help remember—and be sure that YOU are in some of them!
- Nurture the holiday spirit all year. The holidays remind us what special people we have for children, family members, and friends. Try to remember and cherish that special feeling every day. We only get one crack at being our children's dad while they still are children. So let's make the most of it!

PROVIDERS CORNER

Retained Placenta

http://americanpregnancy.org/pregnancy-complications/retained-placentaf

A retained placenta occurs when the placenta remains in the womb and isn't delivered on its own naturally. When this happens, the process has to be manipulated so that the placenta can be removed from the woman's womb.

When the placenta fails to be completely removed from the womb an hour after the baby's delivery, this is the most obvious sign of a retained placenta.

The woman may experience symptoms like:

- fever
- a foul smelling discharge from the vaginal area
- large pieces of tissue coming from the placenta
- · heavy bleeding
- · pain that doesn't stop

Certain factors increase the likelihood of a woman experiencing a retained placenta. They include:

- A pregnancy that occurs in women over the age of 30
- Having a premature delivery that takes place before the 84th week of gestation
- Experiencing an extremely long first and second stage of labor
- Delivering a stillborn baby

The treatment for a retained placenta is simply the removal of the placenta from the woman's womb.

Different methods are often employed to achieve this, and they include:

- A doctor may attempt to remove the placenta manually. However, this does carry some risk of infection.
- Medications that relax the uterus to make it contract can also be used to help expel the placenta from the womb.
- Breastfeeding can be utilized in some situations because the process causes the uterus to contract and may be enough to expel the uterus from the womb.

DID YOU KNOW...

Top reasons why it's awesome being pregnant during the holldays

https://www.pregnancymagazine.com/pregnancy/pregnancylifestyle/top-10-reasons-why-its-awesome-being-pregnantduring-the-holidays

- You can get out of almost anything. Dreading the thought of Christmas shopping?
  No problem just pull the pregnancy card. While you should only use this once during the holiday season (to remain on your family's good side), it's perfectly okay to put the kibosh on something you're not looking forward to simply because you're not feeling up to it while pregnant. They'll take your word for it.
- There's no feeling guilty at the dinner table. Some of the best foods in existence are whipped up during the holidays, and this year you have a legitimate excuse to eat more of them than you normally would. Take advantage of the fact that you need extra calories by going back for seconds.
- Your holiday attire will never be more comfortable. Forget about that itchy Christmas sweater or tight dress on New Year's now you have the opportunity to dress comfortably without getting any disapproving looks from your mother.
   Stretchy pants, loose tops and flat shoes are perfectly stylish.
- It's easy to spread the news. If you recently found out that you're pregnant, there's no better time than the holidays to share the news with your family and friends.
   And you won't have to waste money, gas or time making phone calls or visits!

FITNESS & EXPECTANT MOTHERS:

How to Survive the Holidays When Pregnant

https://www.fitpregnancy.com/pregna ncy/how-survive-holidays-whenpregnant

- Always keep water and snacks nearby If you're out shopping and checking your list twice for all you need to buy, or commuting from one holiday party to another, make sure you always have water nearby.
- Don't feel bad about saying 'no' You'll have a toddler in a few years, so now is a good time to go ahead and practice standing your ground. While you'd love to make it to your friend group's secret Santa, your husband's company party, your co-workers' cookie exchange and visit both your parents and your in-laws, now is the time to learn how to prioritize.
- Schedule time for yourself Between everything you have to buy, attend and do between now and the New Year, you might have trouble finding time to simply sit down. Channel your nurseryand-birth-planning skills toward your own sanity by scheduling an hour for you every single day.
- Fill up on the right nutrients Your pregnancy cravings might switch between craving those sugar cookies to absolutely needing mac-n-cheese right now, but it's more important than even to make sure you're filling up on the right foods with the best nutrients this time of year.
